

About Brent Gleeson

Brent Gleeson is a Navy SEAL combat veteran with multiple tours to Iraq and Africa. Upon leaving SEAL Team 5, Brent turned his discipline and battlefield lessons to the world of business and has become an accomplished entrepreneur, writer, and acclaimed speaker on topics ranging from leadership and building high performance teams to entrepreneurship and marketing. You can learn more about his leadership philosophies in his weekly columns on Inc.com and Forbes.com.

Brent is the Co-founder and CMO of IMI, a leading digital marketing agency based in San Diego. He has also starred in several reality shows including NBC's Stars Earn Stripes where he and Chris Kyle of America Sniper along with other special operations professionals were paired with celebrities to compete and raise money for charities like Wounded Warrior Project.

Brent earned his undergraduate degree in Finance and Economics from Southern Methodist University, has studied English and History at Oxford University in England, and earned a MBA from the University of San Diego.

Brent is on the executive board of the Naval Special Warfare Family Foundation and his family is an Ambassador Family for March of Dimes. He is married with three wonderful children.